The May 1 list comprises the original pension roll, made up under the act of 1888. For the most part it embraces the men who were positively disabled furing the War Between the States from wounds or disease. Many of the pensioners lost a limb or an eye in the struggle.

The pensions paid in September take in a much wider scope, including those who have qualified under subsequent acts.

The revenues of the State ard increasing at a satisfactory rate, and it is now felt that Virginia will be far out of the woods financially by the end of the year 1911. It is not now believed that it will be necessary this year to borrow money from banks, as was done in 1910, in order to meet appropriations failing during the months preceding the time when most people pay their taxes—December. Auditor Donohoe had plenty of mone

Washington People Propose to Build a Line to Winchester.

What looks like a concern meaning business is the Washington and Old Dominion Railway Company, which yesterday applied for a charter to the State Corporation Commission. The business-like look was imparted by the check for $1,000 to the Treasurer of Virginia, which accompanied the application. Tentative projects rarely place their capital stock at such amounts as to require large fees, and when the capital is at a high point it is usually taken to be a genuine propoually taken to be a genuine propo-isually taken to be a genuine proposition.

The Washington and Old Dominion proposes to build a line of road in this State ninety miles long, from a point opposite the District of Columbia through the countles of Alexandria, Fairfax, Loudoun, Clarke and Frederick to the city of Winchester. The maximum stock is $2,000,000 and the minimum $1,000,000. The par value of the shares is to be $100 each. The principal office is to be at Rosslyn.

The road reserves the right to secure its power either from steam or electricity.

The committee retired, and after a recess, presented a series of resolutions, which were adopted by a rising vote. They set forth the sorrow of the Council in the death of Mr. Davis, and record a high estimate of him as a man and citizen, and of the conspicuous fidelity with which he discharged his duties to the municipality.
